Scholarship Available By Virginia Poultry Federation

HARRISONBURG, Va.-

The search for an outstanding high school senior with an interest in a poultry science career is under way. The reward is a $500 scholarship.

Guidance counselors and teachers of vocational agriculture and home economics throughout Virginia have received applications which their students may use for the Virginia Poultry Federation Scholarship, to be awarded on May 17 at the All Industry Luncheon during the Virginia Poultry Convention.

This is the second year that the scholarship has been offered, according to Roland (Skeezix) Coles, Bent Mountain, president of the Virginia Poultry Federation. Last year's winner, Elizxabeth Sigafoose of Elkton, now enrolled in pre-veterinary studies at Virginia Tech.

Coles said the $500 scholarship is open to any Virginia high school senior who plans to pursue higher education in a poultry-related field in a Virginia Institution.

Selection is made by the Youth Committee of the Poultry Federation, he continued, based on character, academic achievement, financial need and interest in the poultry industry.

If a scholarship recipient completes his course, Coles explained and goes to work in a poultry related field with a firm doing business in Virginia for at least one year, it will not be necesary for him to repay the Federation.

If, however, the recipient drops out of school or fails to meet the employment stipulations, the grant is to be repaid. It will bear a token rate of interest, beginning on the recipient's last day in school.

Coles said applications must be in the Federation office nolater than April 30. He urged all eligible high school students to apply.

I have lived long enough to realize that every moment is the right moment to be kind, and a kind deed often does more good for a man than receiving a large gift. Kind hearts are like garden, kind thoughts are the roots, kind words are the flowers and kind deeds are the fruits.
